1	This job lies about pay and will change the way they pay you and no pay for down time because there is no hourly pay for fueling pre and post trips even if this takes a while
2	When I started the environment was excellent and pay was excellent. The company has chosen to outsource all decent paying jobs and move O&O employees to lower compensation paying jobs.
3	hire you for one job. then have you do another job that is salary and pays way more but doesnt pay you for it. unfair work place that tells you they will pay you a certain amount and then doesnt

1	Was a great place to work before the site closed . The coworkers and work environment was awesome . Also ,the benefits and work/ life balance were amazing .

2	Overall Paypal was a average place to work. The main thing was the work life balance. Two of the perks I found the best, were the sabbaticals and the flex time.
3	A great place to work !! Leadership is great good training and the benefits are good. People are friendly and a healthy work environment. Great work/ personal life balance

1	The company lives and breathes it's corporate culture. If you enjoy a fast pace work environment with a strong corporate culture then PayPal may be a good company to consider.
2	Great people and culture. Very positive experience. The culture allowed me to try different things and interact with senior management. It is very flat for an organization perspective.
3	Northwestern Mutual has a culture rooted in helping others attain financial peace and freedom. Everyone is very helpful and gives their time and resources to welcome you into their culture.

1	The job itself is easy but can be stressful due to the passengers and the attitudes they give you. Its a great place to make advances and promotions and the hours were great. Although the management is questionable its a great place to expand your career with the U.S Government.
2	Worked at a NY branch from years indicated above. Not sure what the culture is like now, but my experience at Garda was mostly appalling. Trucks were ill-maintained (at best), days were long, and pay was mediocre. Began to feel like a beast of burden after a while. Pretty dispiriting place. Still have nightmares sometimes about my time there. Would only work here again if there was literally no other option. That said, some people really seemed to enjoy working at Garda (usually, in my experience, ex-military and retired cop types).Not many advancement opportunities when I was there.Moving on from Garda was one of the best decisions I ever made.
3	Although I was here for a short period of time, I was able to meet great people and learned a lot. Challenging environment, advanced technology tools.

1	great benefits and opportunities to advance . great perks . Provide tools and resources needed to be succesful . Management provide great feedback needed to achieve monthly goals.
2	PayPal is good company to work for with many career advancement opportunities. The pay and benefits offered are great! I've never worked for a company that has such great benefits from day one. This company truly cares for their employees.
3	There is limited advancement opportunities. The company and my organization had weak leadership based on nepotism and favoritism. There are better places to seek employment.
